Re: Revised Architectural Review Board Recommendation regarding a Telecommunication Tower on Lucky Hill Road

Community Wireless, applying for permission to erect a transmission tower just north of Remington, quotes a recommendation by the Fauquier County Architectural Review Board of March 2002. This quotation does not reflect the Board's final judgement on the matter.

On April 10th 2002, the Architectural Review Board reconsidered the recommendation approved the previous month, when member, Mary Root, rephrased her earlier motion.

> "The Architectural Review Board would prefer telecommunication installations be attached to existing structures, such as Church Steeples, Water Tanks, Silos and Power Transmission Towers. However the wooded site proposed by Community Wireless has merit and the Board would give a favorable recommendation for a tower designed for mitigated visual impact, such as light gray lattice, not to exceed 80 feet in height.

The motion was made by Carolyn Hartman, was seconded by Ed Tolson and passed unanimously.
